

CHAPTER 9: WEB RESOURCES

Budgeting

Basic budgeting involves reviewing your income and expenses and making decisions on how you use your money. Explore the following Web sites for useful advice and ideas.

www.suzeorman.com

www.moneycontrol.msn.com

www.smartmoney.com

www.money.cnn.com

www.bankrate.com

www.fool.com

Salary

Curious about how much money people make in different careers? Want to find out what experience and skills you need to get hired? Review the data at the following Web sites.

www.bls.gov

www.salary.com

Financial Aid

There are many resources available to help pay for college, including need-based financial aid, merit-based scholarships, federal loans and grants, work-study programs, and employer tuition reimbursement. The type of funding varies based on individual situations, but it never hurts to apply. Try an Internet search for “financial aid for college” or use criteria specific to your situation, such as scholarships for athletics. Browse the following sites for some ideas of what financial aid types are available.

www.fastweb.com

www.finaid.org

www.salliemae.com

www.studentaid.ed.gov

<http://athleticaid.com>